News Summaries

Submit nominations for the 2021 Truth About Nursing media awards!

These annual awards spotlight the best and worst of media for nursing

We are now accepting nominations for the Truth About Nursing awards, which recognize the most notable - best and worst - media about nursing in 2021! Through these annual awards, we inform media creators, the nursing community, and the wider public about the accuracy of nursing portrayals in the media today. The end goal is to improve understanding of the profession, which we believe will increase the respect and resources it receives.

Could charting software be improved?

We will be meeting with Epic soon - please weigh in!

Recently, using our December 2021 MSNBC op-ed as a platform, we asked the makers of Epic charting software for a meeting to discuss how their widely-used software might become more nurse-friendly and use less of nurses' precious clinical time. That would enable nurses to spend more time on direct patient care--including tasks the software itself records--as well as improve nurses' sense of well-being and ability to advocate. Epic representatives graciously agreed to discuss this with us, and we have a meeting set for the middle of this month. We welcome your input. See our top areas of interest.

Nurses' public image undermines their claims for clinical support

New MSNBC op-ed by Truth About Nursing director Sandy Summers explaining that nurses need assistant

The MSNBC site has posted an op-ed by Truth About Nursing director Sandy Summers explaining that nurses need more staff support to provide care to patients in the Covid era. The December 2021 piece argues that this lack of support is due in large part to social and media stereotypes that cast nurses themselves as assistants—as if clerical work is a good use of their time and skills.

Jane the...Daughter of a Nurse

As Jane the Virgin ends, Xo finds her way—to nursing school!

On the final season of The CW's popular telenovela Jane the Virgin, the main character's mother Xiomara (Xo) finally decided on a career path that held promise: nursing. In general, the 2019 plotline tracing Xo's decision-making and nursing school application process told viewers that nursing is a challenging science profession.

Nursing mysteries

Washington Post* highlights a nurse's diagnosis of her mother's mysterious diseases

A "Medical Mysteries" column tells how a new pediatric nurse discovered the rare disease that had been causing her mother pain for years after seeing a lecture that referred to the condition in passing. The 2019 piece shows the nurse to be an educated, alert, and persistent patient advocate.

Donate to the Truth now and your gift will be double-matched!

Help us help nursing--double-match now extended to January 2, 11:59 pm PST!

We can improve public understanding of nursing and build more respect for the profession! When we educate people about the value of nursing, it affects their thinking and their actions. Decision-makers who value nursing allot more funding for nursing research, education and practice. That includes better staffing and other support for nurses at the bedside. This doesn't just improve nurses' lives, it allows us to save more patients from demise as well.

And now, an anonymous donor will match every dollar you give through January 2, 2022 (up to $5,000) with two more dollars for the Truth's work! Plus, in honor of the Los Angeles locations where Jane the Virgin was actually shot, we will measure midnight by Pacific Coast Time, giving many of you additional hours to give. Woo-hoo!

Your donations make the difference between our organization thriving or not. We can only do this work because of you. Funding from members allows us to launch advocacy campaigns, send news alerts, maintain our online presence, get basic office equipment, monitor the global media, and comply with government regulations. All that costs many thousands of dollars each year. So we celebrate every donation that comes in!

Please donate today and support our efforts to transform how the world sees nursing. We don't ask for money like this very often, so please help us now and your donation will be double-matched--every dollar you donate leads to $2 more from our donor.

We need you, and nursing needs you.

Thank you!

Think about the future

New international text Nurses and Nursing leads off with chapter by Truth leaders

The exciting new textbook Nurses and Nursing: The Person and the Profession includes a chapter on nursing's image by Truth leaders Sandy Summers and Harry Jacobs Summers. Edited by Padraig O Luanaigh, RN, EdD, the thought-provoking new textbook from Routledge "draws on international contributors with a range of backgrounds to explore, engage with and challenge readers in understanding the many aspects and elements that inform and influence contemporary nursing practice." Our chapter is "Nursing's public image: Toward a professional future." We thank Dr. Luanaigh for the opportunity to be a part of this important new project. Please consider this book for your classes in professionalism, nursing and society, and nursing leadership. How can nurses become fierce advocates?

Sandy Summers delivered an empowering message to new graduates in a 2019 speech at Widener University's Nightingale ceremony

In a short, compelling address, Sandy Summers

Can you please

welcomes new graduates to the field of nursing and inspires them to become fierce patient advocates--to put patients' interests first. Sandy explains her holistic vision of nursing advocacy and shares strategies to help nurses find their voices. She highlights areas in need of our advocacy and offers perspectives on how to overcome the resistance we meet when we challenge the world to do better. Nursing advocacy saves lives, and our patients need us to do it. So please join Sandy and let's get started!
